POLICY:

At the Cochrane Temiskaming Resource Centre, the privacy of your personal health information has always been an important aspect of how we operate. As such, Cochrane Temiskaming Resource Centre has developed the following Privacy Policy in order to ensure compliance with privacy legislation, as well as to inform individuals of our continuing commitment to the protection of their personal health information.

What is the Personal Health Information Protection Act?

The Personal Health Information Protection Act (PHIPA) became law on November 1, 2004. It determines what happens to your personal health information when it is being collected, used or disclosed by people or organizations known as health information custodians. Health information custodians (HIC's) include:

- Health care professionals,
- Hospitals;
- Pharmacies;
- Homes for special care;
- Agencies providing services to children and adults with a developmental disability;
- Community health and mental health programs; and
- Community care access centres

What is personal health information? (PHI)

Personal information (PHI) is the information that health care providers collect about you and use to provide you with health care. PHI includes identifiable factual information recorded about an individual.

What is a record of personal health information?

It is the record kept by HICs who provide you with health care. The records contain your personal health information as well as non-health information. At CTRC we refer to this as the clients file or "casebook".

Who is responsible for protecting the personal information collected, used and disclosed by Cochrane Temiskaming Resource Centre?

The Cochrane Temiskaming Resource Centre has a designated Privacy Officer for the organization. All employees and members of the Board are responsible for ensuring compliance with this Privacy Policy. At times, Cochrane Temiskaming Resource Centre staff may be delegated to act on behalf of the Privacy Officer or to take responsibility for occasional collection, use and disclosure of personal information. .

What is “collection, use or disclosure” under PHIPA?

Collection: We collect PHI about a client directly from the client or from the person acting on that client’s behalf. The PHI that we collect may include health history and records of the client’s health care. When we have consent, or the law permits, we collect PHI about the client from other sources. Before collecting a client’s PHI, we will explain the purpose of collecting the information. We will only collect, use and disclose your PHI with your consent, except where otherwise permitted or required by law.

Use and Disclosure of PHI: This agency uses and discloses PHI to:

- Treat and care for the client in the community
- Plan, administer and manage our internal operations
- Conduct risk management activities
- Conduct quality improvement activities
- Teach
- Conduct research
- Compile statistics
- Comply with legal and regulatory requirements and
- Fulfill other purposes permitted or required by law.
- Non-identifying information may be shared with the Ministry of Community and Social Services and the Ministry of Children’s Services for program planning, which may include demographic information, information on children’s needs, waiting lists numbers, etc. Personal Health Information is not shared with the Ministries.

Getting Consent

The consent to the collection, use or disclosure of the information may be implied or expressed.

1. Express (written) consent will always be asked in the following circumstances:
 - For all collection, use or disclosures of information (see Authorization for Services)
 - Where the disclosing of the information is to someone who is not a Health Information Custodian (i.e. a school board, an insurer, an employer, WSIB, CAS, lawyer, etc.); and
 - Where the disclosing of the information is to someone who is a Health Information Custodian but for the purposes other than providing health care (e.g. a school)
2. Implied consent is obtained where one is provided with a notice (either posted in a place where one is likely to see it, directly given to you or explained to you verbally) and an opportunity to withhold consent is given.
 - Limitations and withdrawal of consent may be provided at any time, unless doing so prevents service providers from recording the information that is required by law or

- under professional standards. Expressed (written) instruction can be given to specify what information should not be used or disclosed.
3. Personal information can sometimes be collected, used or disclosed without consent in limited instances that are expressly permitted by PHIPA. For example, some statutes require disclosure of personal information, such as the Coroners Act, the Vital Statistics Act and the Child and Family Services Act.
 - UNLESS A CLIENT TELLS US NOT TO: we will disclose information to other health care providers in the “Circle of Care” who need to know this information to provide the client with care or help . The “Circle of Care” includes health care professionals, pharmacies, laboratories, ambulance service, other hospital, nursing homes, Community Care Access Centres, agencies providing services to children and adults with a developmental disability and home service providers who provide the client with health care services. . (see Informed Consent for Distribution of Reports)
 4. The “Your personal Health Information Brochure” must be posted throughout the agency for clients to view. This same statement will be provided to the legal guardian by the Intake Coordinator following the completed referral process. During the first interview, all staff will ensure to inform clients of the agency’s policy for collection, use, and disclosure procedures of personal health information. Where the client is not able to understand the concept of collection, use and disclosure; staff are able to continue to collect, use and disclose until such time that the client is able to view the statement and/or staff are able to obtain consent .
